Editor’s Message

We hope readers had an enjoyable summer. This issue of EAA includes the special section “Water and Asia.” Scholars who have published extensively on China environmental issues provide in the first two articles, comprehensive overviews of China’s water problems that complement each other and should be quite useful for the classroom. In “China’s Water Challenges: National and Global Implications,” David Pietz offers compelling examples of the potential worldwide effects of China’s water crisis. Judith Shapiro’s amply illustrated “China: Harnessing the Waters” provides historical context for China’s current water situation and chronicles the activities of individuals and organized groups to improve water quality in China. Pierce Salguero’s “Cultural Associations of Water in Early Chinese and Indian Religion and Medicine” takes readers back in time to better understand how perceptions of water and beliefs associated with it helped to shape traditional Indian and Chinese cultures.

Kimberley Thomas in “The ‘Mundane Violence’ of International Water Conflicts” focuses upon Asia in probably introducing many EAA readers in developed nations to a potential problem they haven’t or would rather not contemplate. Robert Ivermee does a nice job in “The Hooghly River: A Sacred and Secular Waterway” of combining the metaphysical and the material in an interesting account of a major South Asian river that stretches from the distant past to the present. Allison Hahn in “Mongolian Dzud: Threats to and Protection of Mongolia’s Herding Communities” documents the great amounts of livestock deaths and damage to Mongolia’s economy caused by severe winter storms often involving massive snowfall. In the last special section feature article, Monika Dix in “Water, Tradition, and Innovation: Flowing through Japan’s Cultural History” writes about both traditional and contemporary ways water influences Japanese culture. Jared Hall, our new guest columnist, focuses upon water in his Digital Asia column that will be appearing in each issue. Jared both identifies excellent resources in the column and discusses how they might be utilized with students. Two long-time EAA editors, Art Barbeau and Gary DeCoker, each contribute brief water-related essays based upon their experiences in respectively, China and Japan.

The fall issue includes a teaching resources essay and three additional book essays on textbooks and primary source-based readers specifically intended for the classroom, as well as a book review on twentieth-century China. The classroom-friendly “Ten Top Things to Know About Singapore in the Twenty-First Century” should serve as an excellent student introduction to a nation whose achievements far exceed its size. Soy Sauce lovers will particularly appreciate this issue’s Asia: Experiential Learning column by Willa Zhen. Readers should also see our fall Online Supplements for an introduction to the Asia Pacific Foundation of Canada and some excellent digital instructional resources they have developed for social studies teachers, as well as a short essay by Damon Woods, author of a forthcoming Key Issues in Asian Studies volume on the Philippines.

The winter 2017 special section is “Demographics, Social Policy, and Asia (Part I).” November 30th, 2017 is the deadline for initial receipt of manuscripts for the spring 2018 special section, “Asian Politics,” and April 20th, 2018 is the deadline for fall 2018, “Demographics, Social Policy, and Asia (Part II).”
Please visit the EAA website at www.asian-studies.org/eaa for author guidelines and for information about all planned special sections; non-thematic manuscripts are also considered for each issue.

Please encourage friends and colleagues who prefer EAA print copies to subscribe at our low rates. This can be done online at the EAA website. Readers interested in accessing PDFs of all EAA articles and essays through the current issue can visit the EAA website for no charge and no required password. In the meantime, please like us on Facebook, follow EAA on Twitter, and tell your friends to do the same. Readers especially interested in EAA developments should go to our website and register for the EAA e-mail digest; there is no charge, the newsletter is distributed every five-six weeks, and subscribers will also learn about other Asia-related teaching resources.

Cordially,
Lucien Ellington
Editor: Education About Asia
Lucien-Ellington@utc.edu

Send formal EAA submissions to:
Jeffrey Melnik
Managing Editor, Education About Asia
305 Hunter Hall, Dept. 2222
University of Tennessee at Chattanooga
Chattanooga, TN 37403
Phone: (423) 425-2118, Fax: (423) 425-5441
Email: edast@utc.edu
Website: http://www.asian-studies.org/EAA

Errata
Spring 2017
In Franklin Rausch’s review of the documentary So Long Asleep, there were two location errors given in the image captions. On p. 38, the procession is on the grounds of Nishi-Honganji Temple in Kyoto, Japan. On p. 39, the public commemoration service is taking place in Seoul City Square. These errors have been corrected in the open access version of the article available on our website. The editors apologize for the errors.

Editor’s Note
Readers will note that in this issue we published two tributes to recently deceased Asianists who significantly impacted our field. Shortly after the production process for the fall issue began, we learned of the death of another pioneer in Asian Studies, Wm. Theodore de Bary. Readers unfamiliar with Professor de Bary’s accomplishments should read this post from the AAS #AsiaNow blog (http://tinyurl.com/y725v9af) for a moving tribute to his life and work. More on Professor de Bary’s work will be forthcoming in the EAA winter issue.

Editorial Board
Editor: Lucien Ellington, The University of Tennessee at Chattanooga.

Associate Editors.
P. Frost (Emeritus), University of Mississippi; David Grossman, East-West Center; Roberta Martin, Columbia University; Kristin E. Stapleton, State University of New York at Buffalo.

Editorial Advisory Board.
Fay Beauchamp, Community College of Philadelphia; Katherine Bowie, University of Wisconsin, Madison; Patricia Burleson, National Consortium for Teaching about Asia; Gary DeCoker, ASIA-Net; P. Frost (Emeritus), University of Mississippi; Peter Gilmartin, Primary Source; Gwen Johnson, Scarsdale High School; Arnold P. Kaminsky, California State University, Long Beach; Linda Lewis, American Friends Service Committee; Roberta Martin, Columbia University; Kristin E. Stapleton, State University of New York at Buffalo; Paul B. Watt, Waseda University; Anand A. Yang, University of Washington.

Editors.
Nimish Adhia, Manhattanville College; Arthur Barbeau (Emeritus), West Liberty State College; Fay Beauchamp, Community College of Philadelphia; Mary Bernson, University of Washington; Fritz Blackwell (Emeritus), Washington State University; Frank Chance, University of Pennsylvania; Linda Chance, University of Pennsylvania; Mary Connor, National Korean Studies Seminar; Linda Cuadra, Tacoma Community College; Gary DeCoker, ASIA-Net; Clayton Dube, University of Southern California; Dan Duffy, Viet Nam Literature Project; Peter Gilmartin, Primary Source; Jared Hall, Hotchkiss School; Charles W. Hayford, Visiting Scholar, Northwestern University; Michele Ferrier Herfyford, University of Pittsburgh, Vera Heuer, Virginia Military Institute; Duane Johansen, University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana; David Jones, Kennesaw State University; Brenda G. Jordan, University of Pittsburgh; Karen Kane, Columbia University; Marleen Kassel, Queens College-CUNY; Tommy Lamont, Groton School; Ronnie Littlejohn, Belmont University; Kelly Ann Long, Colorado State University; Daniel A. Metraux (Emeritus), Mary Baldwin College; Gary Mukai, Stanford University; Ann Wood Norton, Providence College; Lynn Parisi, University of Colorado; Anne Prescott, Smith College; Michael J. Seth, James Madison University; Keith Snodgrass, University of Washington; Lesley Solomon, Independent Scholar; Caryn Stedman, The Metropolitan Learning Center; Namji Kim Steinemann, East-West Center; Carol Stepanchuk, University of Michigan; Diana Marston Wood, University of Pittsburgh.

Editorial Staff. Managing Editor: Jeffrey Melnik
Art Director: Wila Davis
Copy Editor: Ashley Hopkins
Student Assistants: Nancy Asplund, Megan Kaylor
Marketing and Advertising Coordinator: Jenna Yoshikawa

Publications Manager and Webmaster: Jon Wilson
Social Media Manager: Maura Cunningham

Sponsoring Organizations.
The University of Michigan, The University of Tennessee at Chattanooga.

Officers of the Association.
President: Katherine Bowie, University of Wisconsin, Madison; Vice President: Anne Feldhaus, Arizona State University; Past President: Laurel Kendall, American Museum of Natural History; Past-Past President: Timothy Brook, University of British Columbia; Executive Director: Michael Paschal.

Reviewers for This Issue.